CO-EDUCATIONAL DAY SCHOOL

LAMDA Teacher For September 2025

Applications are invited for a well-qualified and inspirational LAMDA teacher (self-employed) to start in September 2025 at Ibstock Place School, an independent co-educational school in south-west London. The Drama department has excellent facilities, including an industry-standard Theatre, and there are multiple productions and performance opportunities over the academic year. LAMDA is well-established at the school and many pupils take weekly lessons and graded exams. There are also three LAMDA showcases during the academic year.

One to two days of teaching are available, with 15+ pupils having weekly lessons. Depending on demand, there may be scope to increase this number in the next academic year. Lessons are taught individually or in pairs, are typically 30 minutes long, and are for pupils from Year 7 to Year 13. The hourly rate is £56. The successful candidate will have a proven record of excellence in preparing pupils for LAMDA examinations and a passion for developing confidence and performance skills in young people.

A completed Ibstock Place School application form should be emailed to Mr Nicolas Walker, Head of Expressive Arts, and Mrs Katherine Fennell, Expressive Arts Assistant, as soon as possible via:
